CHATTEL MORTGAGES.

The merchants of Virden have given notice to farmers that if they wish to obtain cash on their property in any of the stores of the town, they must not give chattel mortgages on the crops of 1894. The chattel mortgage on the crops of 1894. The

In the great majority of cases, these mortgages are given to implement firms for machinery, the loan former being passed on to the farmer for payment that this was his only recourse. This leaves the merchant who supplies the farmer and his family in the town so far as being able to get the amount out of next year's crop, until the creditor's claim with interest and costs are fully satisfied. There is neither justice nor fairness in the law that makes chattel mortgages on unharvested or growing crops legal. It is bad.

We take it for granted that the Chronicle means that it is bad in principle, and not because it gives security to implement firms and not to merchants. A chattel mortgage on the crop of 1894 will do a farmer just as much harm in the hands of a merchant as in the hands of an implement man. There is a law at the present time, professing to secure to the farmer all that is necessary in order that he may carry on his business and support his family. At the same time there is another law allowing chattel mortgages to be legal when given on these things.

What a grand farce it is! One of the ancient evils might just as well have considered itself secure with a wall on three sides of it while the fourth was open to the foe.

If it is desirable to have chattels and grain exempt from seizure, why in the name of common sense should a chattel mortgage or any other mortgage hold good against them? We regard the

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES

Address given by R. A. McLoughry, V. S., at the Farmers' Institute, meeting held in the Town Hall on Saturday.

Mr. R. A. McLoughry, V. S., of the town, addressed the Farmers' Institute on Saturday, Jan. 6th, on "Contagious Diseases." A large number were present and listened attentively to the V. S.'s address as follows:

"Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:—In addressing you on the subject of contagious diseases, I realize the importance of making my remarks as practical as possible, and will therefore leave discussion of many things, which, though interesting to the Veterinary profession, are not of practical value to us today.

There are many contagious diseases among domesticated animals, but owing to our having here a greatly hereditary we see very few of them. In this class there are Variola, Contagious Eczema, Rabies, Maladie Du Cerveau, Canine Distemper, Swine Plague (hog cholera). In all these we are not specially interested but we have our own share and the following are frequently brought to our notice, namely: Contagious pleuropneumonia, Tubercle (consumption), Anthrax, Actinomyces (lumpy jaw) Maligne, Glanders and Farcy.

Medical writers make a distinction between a contagious and an infectious disease. For the sake of simplicity I will ask you to remember that when I use either of these terms I mean a disease that can be conveyed from one animal to another.

Contagious diseases are due to some specific virus or poison working on the system. This poison is usually spoken of as the germ of the disease. It is infectious in the sense that it is capable of being isolated and examined under a magnifying glass. The diffusion of these germs is very wide as matters which they can grow are found almost everywhere. They fourish in dead matter, animal or vegetable matter and in stagnant water. When these moist places dry up or animal and vegetable matters decay the germs of disease, which they may contain are in fact, once driven off into the air—in the case of glanders and farcy this does not take place.

Within the past year we have heard a great deal about contagious pleuropneumonia. Pleuropneumonia means an inflammation of the lungs and the delicate membrane (pleura) that covers the lungs and the cavity which contains them.

There is a contagious and also a non-contagious kind. The latter usually caused by exposure to cold or a sudden change of temperature, while the former is caused by contact with some animal already affected. You will readily understand that if several animals are exposed at the same time to some climatic change, a number of them may have pleuro-pneumonia, but all will have it at the same time.

When the contagious disease breaks out in a herd one after another becomes affected until the whole herd fall victims to the malady. It has been demonstrated beyond the possibility of a doubt that our herds are not dying off and yet when our cattle arrive on the other side of the Atlantic the English Veterinarians profess to find the disease.

As has been proven lately by two of our most reliable veterinarians, what they really find is the non-contagious disease brought on by the exposure incident to a long sea voyage.

Some tell us the closing of the British markets means that our farmers will still feed their cattle, and in the end this will prove a blessing. I cannot take such an optimistic view of it however. The majority of our farmers are not in a position to stand fast and if they sell their half-fattened animals at all it will be to their neighbors who may be in a position to finish the process and reap the profits. I fail to see how even fat cattle can bring as good a price as formerly. Under the old regulations when a cargo of fat cattle was landed, orders came in from inland towns, the cattle were shipped alive and at once and were slaughtered as required.

Now they must be slaughtered at the port of entry and the meat shipped, giving rise to extra cost for cold storage, etc.

This disease has been known for more than 200 years in Russia. Gradually it spread to other countries and was first noticed in the United States in 1817. When once it has gained a foothold it is very hard to expel. So our neighbors have found it, and since the tide of emigration has set in from the other side of the line, extra care should be taken to prevent settlers carrying the disease with them. Our Dominion is free from it and it should be our aim to keep it so.

The next disease is one that we have here, namely, Anthrax. It consists in an alteration of the blood due to the presence of the Bacillus Anthracis. It is most frequently seen in cattle and horses, but more especially in spring and early summer. It has a very ancient history. The sixteenth and seventeenth centuries were marked by terrible outbreaks of this disease. In the year 1617 in the neighborhood of Naples 10,000 persons died through eating the flesh of animals affected by it. That we in this country have not suffered from a similar calamity is due no doubt to the fact that no one is compelled, through want, to eat meat about which there is the slightest doubt.

There have been a few deaths, among the attendants of diseased animals, caused by a rash of the knife while examining diseased carcasses or by carelessness when there may have been some slight abrasion of the skin. Just here let me add a caution, when you examine a carcass, even though you may feel sure that death was not due to a contagious disease, be very careful in the use of the knife, and afterwards make a liberal use of carbolic acid, or some other antiseptic. Since the disease is due to a specific virus, it develops more readily under favorable conditions. These favorable conditions are heat and moisture, wet low land and contact with animals already affected. The disease is also disseminated through the agency of flies. I will not weary you by dwelling on the changes which take place in the animal during the development of the disease, but will try to give you a few of the prominent symptoms that will enable you to detect it. True Anthrax or Anthrax-Febris is rapidly fatal. The first indications of trouble may be the finding of one of your cattle dead. During an outbreak of this disease near Yorkton about a year ago, a farmer put his cattle in the yard at milking time and left them for a few minutes. On returning he found one of his best young cows showing symptoms of great pain. She rapidly grew worse and died in about twenty minutes in convulsions. In such cases an examination shows the spleen, liver, heart and lungs filled with dark clotted blood. In those forms in which death does not take place so rapidly, swellings or tumors appear over the loins and less frequently in other parts of the body. On rubbing the hand over these tumors they will be found hot and painful to the touch, and giving forth a crackling sound as though filled with air.

Quarter-ill or Blackleg is usually seen in animals that have been changed from a poor pasture to a very rich one. It shows itself by loss of appetite, harsh and staring coat, arching of the back, stiffness and lameness and the formation of tumors on the shoulders or loins. If these tumors are cut into they give off a dark colored, foetid fluid succeeded by a yellow, frothy discharge. As the disease advances, the symptoms increase in severity, and the animal dies in convulsions. The malady is not confined to cattle but affects sheep, horses, dogs, fowls (especially chickens) and man. Little can be done by way of a cure in any form of Anthrax, so every effort should be made to prevent its spread. All animals should be removed from the affected pastures, and the healthy ones separated from the diseased. Incubation has also been proven successful and will no doubt be brought into use in some parts of this province.

We regret that lack of space will not permit us to give the remainder of the lecture in full. Attention was called to the necessity for care in handling horses supposed to be affected with glanders and farcy. He also dealt with the injustice of compelling owners to shoulder the whole loss when animals are destroyed. Lam-py-law, Tuberculosis and Maligne were then dealt with. He warned sheep owners of the danger from mange or scald and the chances of its being carried into the country with sheep imported from Dakota and Montana, and the ease with which it spreads, especially in a prairie country.

After the lecture a lively discussion took place followed by an address by Mr. John Middleton.

Among the acts which it is contemplated to bring in at the next session of the legislature is one to require all insurance companies to take but a provincial license before being allowed to do business in Manitoba and also to compel all companies not doing business under a Dominion license to make a deposit with the local government.

Mr. Joseph Martin has received a request to speak at the Eastern Association of Tariff Reform and Liberal Association convention to be held in the opera house at Moosomin Jan. 13. This convention is being held at a time when the legislature is in session and it is expected that the next general election to be held in the Dominion will be held by Mr. W. W. McNeill. Mr. Martin has written that he will be able to accept of the request.

At a meeting of the council of Pictou, N.S., recently this resolution was adopted: "That the state of many of the foreign settlers lately located in the municipality of Pictou is such that they are utterly unable to procure the necessary seed for their land for the coming season and we would respectfully call the attention of the government to the same and urge that relief be provided therefor, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the provincial government."

THE ELKHORN ADVOCATE

THURSDAY, JANUARY 11, 1901

LOCAL NEWS.

The Local Legislature opens today. That coming later "trip" is about to be revived.

Miss Maudie of Bluff is the guest of Mrs. Talbot this week.

Mr. J. F. Frame, M. P. P., was in town on Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. R. S. Mowat, of the firm of Thomas and Mowat, is in Winnipeg this week.

The lowest the thermometer has been this week was 37° on Tuesday morning.

Mr. D. W. Grimmett, postmaster at Elm Valley, was in town on Thursday last.

Mr. Dan Stewart of the firm of Coombs & Co. is spending the week in town.

Mr. Wm. Harry left on Tuesday for Duck Mountain, where he will remain for some months.

Mr. J. McLeod went to Victoria on yesterday morning's express, returning the same day.

Messrs. Rogers and Douglas went to Winnipeg on Sunday morning's express, and returned on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Cyrus Bailey, who has been visiting his parents here for the past few weeks, left for Duck Mountain on Tuesday.

We have received "Notes" by a "Hambler" which are undoubtedly correct on this week; and will appear in our next issue.

Rev. Dyke of Missosin, will preach in the Methodist church next Sunday morning, and evening, and in the Hall, Elphinstown, 8 p.m.

There was nothing definitely decided at the temperance meeting held Tuesday evening, as to the course the society would pursue.

The Presbyterian Ladies' Aid will hold a social in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening, January 17th. A collection will be taken up.

A terrific blizzard was raging yesterday. Telegraph wires were blown down and other damage done. The train from the east was two hours late.

Miss Mary Peniston went to Oak Lake on Monday morning. She returned on Tuesday evening and will shortly leave for her home at DeChare.

Mr. M. Van Nostrand had the misfortune to lose $14 on Tuesday evening, somewhere between his residence and the skating rink, or in the Town Hall.

The prospectus of the Nor'Western a new paper about to be started in Winnipeg is out. Mr. W. F. L. is now formerly editor-in-chief of the Free Press, will fill the editorial chair.

A congregational meeting is called for Friday evening at 8 o'clock in St. Mark's Church, to discuss the advisability of forming a young people's society in connection with the church.

The trustees of the public school, have engaged Mr. Fletcher as teacher for the ensuing year, duties to commence Feb. 1st. Mr. Fletcher holds a first class certificate, and comes highly recommended.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Johnson left for Hamilton, Ontario, on yesterday morning's express. We are unable to state definitely whether they will return to Elkhorn or not, but sincerely hope that they may.

That amusing and instructive lecture by Mr. W. Herbert Wilson, took place on Monday evening last. A very slim audience greeted the speaker. There is no doubt but he has seen a great deal of the world. We will not weary our readers with an account of his travels.

The Union Sunday school held their annual meeting for the election of teachers and officers last evening. A fair crowd was in attendance considering the inclemency of the weather. All the old teachers and officers were re-elected. Mrs. Travis was elected organist, and Mr. Wm. Simington librarian. Mr. McLaughlin and Miss Hinton both read very interesting papers from which much good might be taken by the teachers present. The service in the first part of the evening was excellent.

"Mama" must have been the word, for when we stepped that Ned would enter Hyman's home at such an early date, that "mama" will out, and it was evident to Ned left the town that the boys had caught him. The wedding was celebrated at the residence of Mr. Thos. McLeod.

Miss Ethel Smith, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Simington, performed the part of bridesmaid. The knot was sacredly tied by the Rev. Mr. Fortune. A number of friends gathered at the Elphinstown Hotel on Tuesday evening and spent a most enjoyable time dancing, etc., in honor of the newly wedded couple. The Advocate extends congratulations.

Final game between Bradley and Travis was won by Bradley. Some 1500 5. Bradley gets the best and Travis the turkeys.

The first draw in the president's competition is nearly through. There is a close race between Bradley, Fraser, Cavanagh and Travis, with the latter in the lead.

Two links with Hay and Fraser as skip, attend the district competition at Virgil on the 20th and 27th. We would advise these links to get down to practice and keep up the good record of Elkhorn as a center in all athletic games.

COMMUNICATIONS.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions of our correspondents.]

To the Editor of the Advocate.

SIR,—In your last issue there appeared an article on "Christianity" by "Observer." With all due respect to the writer, his observations are of small magnitude. After reading the article over, I fail to get an idea on the subject. I don't think he has got any Christianity. If we are to judge by the article referred to, it being the most senseless thing that possibly ever appeared in print, having started nowhere and ended in the same place. "Observer" ought to eat a little more fish, as it is an old saying, that fish eaters have great brain power.

I would like to ask "Observer" if he was dreaming when he wrote that article, or if he just ate down in his sanctum with his pen in his hand out of cold blood to do it. I think it would have repaid him ten fold if he had taken up the Good Book and put the time he was wasting into reading it and thereby have been a great benefit to himself. But to start to write on a subject foreign in every particular to "Observer" seems to me to be ridiculous for anything. I did not think in this enlightened age that such ignorance existed, particularly in a country like this where education is free.

NONSENSE.

To the Editor of the Advocate.

SIR,—When a man's vanity is touched there is no telling how far he will go to get back as they call it. There has been a case of this description during the past few weeks, which has just come to my notice. Up to lately I always had the highest respect for the person in question, believing him to be an exception to the rule, both from a learned as well as a religious standpoint, but to my great surprise much learning evidently has made him and as well as clearly demonstrated. This individual, as we understand, was an aspirant to office, and because he did not get it he was bound to have revenge, but I am pleased to notice his little petty spite had not the desired effect, but I hope will tend to more vanity.

Now I think that any person who has nothing else on hand to take up their time but go around with a reputation and get names on it by misrepresentation, particularly in church matters, has very little Christian spirit in them. And also when you begin to tamper with anything of this kind you are liable to lose your friends, if you ever had any among the people who belong.

ONLOOKER.

Beulah.

A Happy and prosperous New Year to the ADVOCATE.

Wedding bells were chiming round Beulah last Wednesday, when Mr. Harry Dayner of Gladstone carried off one of Beulah's most popular young ladies, namely, Miss Wilson. We wish them every happiness in their new sphere of life.

Snow is falling rapidly again here today, and the trails which have been splendid this last week are likely to be blocked again.

Beulah is not particularly lively this winter, so far we have had no concerts, no dances, and very little other amusement. The people seem to be following the customs of the bear, and intend hibernating till spring. We think a small earthquake or a little dynamite might have the desired effect, and rouse them up a little.

Mr. W. A. Doyle has not yet returned from Ottawa, so the North-West Central terminal still remains at Hamilton.

Mr. E. Frazer of Elkhorn has been visiting friends in Beulah this last week.

Mr. A. Hottes of Regina, Veterinary Corporal in the N. W. M. P., is spending his furlough with friends in Beulah and vicinity. He likes the Police immensely and says it beats wheat raising at 40 cts. a bushel.

Most of the sufferers from la grippe are convalescent, and they one and all hope it will not appear again.

DeChare.

Mr. Joseph Kelsie, after a brief illness caused by congestion of the brain, passed away on the 2nd of January. Mrs. Kelsie and family have the sympathy of the people in their sad bereavement. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Albert Lewis has returned from Gravelly to spend the winter.

There have been several deer shot in the Av. hills since this winter. New Year's passed off very quietly.

Fleming.

Cold weather, 72 degrees below freezing. Our school resumed Monday morning. Miss Minnie McLeod of Missosin having charge.

The annual school meeting took place on Saturday last when the usual business was transacted. Mr. B. A. Gilbert presided from the board of trustees, and Mr. David Findlay was elected to fill the vacancy.

Miss B. Winter's aunt past last night on the delayed express to visit friends in Elkhorn.

Mr. W. Van Eaton's many friends will be sorry to learn that he is at present under the doctor's care.

Miss Parlett is attending the High School in Missosin. Mrs. Parlett has fully recovered from her late illness. As high as 40 cents per bushel is being paid for wheat, cash, and 30 cents in trade.
